BIBLE STUDIES

Biblical Inerrancy and the Lutheran Confessions

Pastor Heath Pukallus & Pastor Mathew Ker

The catch cry of the Lutheran Church is built on four maxims: Grace alone, Faith alone, Christ alone, Scripture alone. Yet in the Lutheran Church today we find ourselves at loggerheads with other Lutherans in our social climate. God's Word remains the plumb line by which God's people and the Church are measured (Amos 7:7-8). At one and the same time this provides warning and comfort. The Lutheran Confessions affirm with confidence and certainty both the authority of God's Word, and how we read and hear this Word as both Law and Gospel. This distinction keeps us turning back to God in repentance so we can receive his gracious and boundless forgiveness.

In these studies, Pastor Heath Pukallus and Pastor Mathew Ker will investigate the history of God's salvation in the Scriptures and the Lutheran Confessions to see how humanity constantly needs to be brought back from standing in authority over God's Word, to standing under God's Word. Now we can understand how Grace, Faith, Christ, and Scripture alone function in the lives of those seeking to remain faithful to God our Father, following the way of Jesus Christ, and live a life of peace in submission to work of the Holy Spirit.
